LORD ABBETT®

Julie Hill is currently a member of the board of directors of Anthem, the largest U.S. health insurance company by member, and The Lord Abbett Family of Funds, a $160-billion New York-based mutual fund management firm. She's the first female trustee at Lord Abbett and the first woman and longest-serving director at Anthem. She was previously on the board of Lend Lease, a Sydney-based $7 billion international construction, development, investment and management firm, as well as several other public corporate boards.

Hill founded Hillsdale Development, a Newport Beach-based home building and land development company in 1998, which she sold in 2003, and The Hill Co., which has a portfolio of interests. From 1991-1998, Hill was president and CEO in the U.S. of Costain Homes, a division of the Costain Group based in London, England. She was previously a senior executive with Mobil Land Development Corp. in Atlanta, Georgia, a division of Mobil Oil.

Hill is active in numerous philanthropic endeavors. She is currently Chair of the Board of Trustees of UCI and is a past Chair of the UCI CEO Roundtable. She was a long-time Chair of the board of directors of Human Options, a shelter for abused women and children. As CEO of Costain Homes, the company built the ULI award-winning domestic violence shelter. She served on the board of directors of the Orange County Community Foundation. She is a member of the International Women's Forum and Los Angeles Trusteeship, and is a prior member of the Women's Leadership Board of the Kennedy School of Government at Harvard. She has recently traveled to Burma to work with refugees, is a champion of various human rights organizations and several international women's rights philanthropies.

She is past Chair of the Paul Merage School of Business Directors' Board, and has served in various other capacities for the School of Social Ecology, the School of Biological Sciences, the School of Humanities and the Women's Opportunities Center. She is a past recipient of the Orange County Business Journal's Women in Business Award and has received the Amelia Earhart Award from the Women's Opportunities Center, as well as the Glass Ceiling Award from the American Red Cross.

Hill earned a bachelor of arts in English from UCLA, and a master's degree in marketing from the University of Georgia. She lives with her family in Newport Coast, CA and London, England.
