Riley Cutner-Orrantia

Expanding its San Diego legal team, Crosbie Gliner Schiffman Southard & Swanson LLP (CGS3) has announced the addition of Riley Cutner-Orrantia and Salvatore (Sal) Padula as new associate attorneys in its San Diego offices.

According to CGS3 founding partner Sean Southard, both add extensive commercial real estate expertise to the firm's growing San Diego transactional and litigation teams.

"With a keen focus on commercial real estate public-private financing and renewable energy, Riley is a forward-thinking real estate attorney who represents developers and investors in all phases of the commercial real estate cycle – from acquisitions to financing," Southard said. "An experienced litigator, Sal further rounds out our litigation practice, representing both plaintiffs and defendants across a broad range of civil matters, including breach of contract, breach of fiduciary duty, fraud, misappropriation, partnership dissolution and shareholder disputes."

Cutner-Orrantia holds a Bachelor of Science degree in environmental science from UCLA and earned her J.D. from the University of Colorado School of Law. Padula earned his Bachelor of Arts degree in economics from UCSB and his J.D. from Notre Dame School of Law.

CGS3 is a new generation commercial real estate law firm with practice areas covering the full commercial real estate life cycle, including finance, acquisition/disposition, entity formation, tax, development, land use, leasing, distressed asset workouts and dispute resolution. Earning a reputation as one of California's leading commercial real estate law firms, CGS3 has recruited some of the state's top real estate attorneys from both large corporate firms and senior in-house positions.
